

Celebrating Humanity - Les Enfants de l'Atlas

By Suna Moya - 4 November 2018

Hansjörg Huber Giving Back By Founding A Village For Illegitimate And Outcast Children In Far-Off Morocco.

Les Enfants de l'Atlas - Dar Boulder Village located about 30 kilometers south of Marrakech. Photography by N. SPIESS

Hansjörg Huber is a successful insurance agent and now an elderly gentleman. He has attained almost everything in life but has always felt the need to achieve more. He realized that the way to do so was by giving back, and that true happiness can only be fulfilled through helping others.

Abandoned children, newborns being thrown away like worthless objects, with no mother to encircle them in the arms of love. No father figure to give guidance or direction. This is a worldwide catastrophe, a disaster in which we are all aware of. Shameful, yet true! These are human beings who have already experienced emotional stress during their prenatal period. Why should they have to enter this world with nothing, no hope, or no future? Innocent children of God brought to life not of their doing but through the mistakes of a global society gone mad. They are born with no starting number many abandoned on the streets outside or close to public buildings. Many die, many others are not even found!

Hansjörg Huber decided that he would give back by founding a village for illegitimate and outcast children in far-off Morocco. He built the village for these children with his own money, more than 1.5 million euro.

For the 26th Edition of the Oriental Fashion Show held on 21st and 22nd September 2018 and Hind Joudar joined forces with Hansjörg Huber, the founder of the association " les enfants de l' atlas ".

The objective was to present a gala show which included fashion, music and a dinner to promote this important charitable cause. The proceed from sale of the tickets for the event and the precious objects donated are used to fund the charitable cause where arts, fashion, glamour and luxury are all in aid of poverty and deserted children.

This spectacular event took place at the Incredibly beautiful gardens of Royal Mansour under the stars in an Oriental setting. A fashion show presenting couture designers featuring flirty dresses and rich elaborated caftans beautifully designed with a colourful Arabian Night ambience.

The gala show lasted 2 days and all the proceeds are donated to aid the creation of host village for young orphans in Morocco.

The next day following this extraordinary event we arrived in Dar Boulder Village located about 30 kilometers south of Marrakech.

Here the children learn as part of a school program, four basic languages: Arabic, Berber, French and English, religious and philosophical values, the practice of music, sports and more. Activities carried out thanks to the involvement of the godfathers and godmothers of these children to become future's proud and strong citizens. The model of the first village will be duplicated for Morocco with the help of donations and from people sensitive to the project who are in search of a bigger meaning. It's an incredible experience to mingle with the young orphans whom many are disabled. But with their shining eyes and smiles of hope for a brighter future, they sing, dance, and play with a surety of their new tomorrow.

